Dear Eddie —

I was so disappointed when I received your telegram this morning. I can't tell you how much I was looking forward to seeing you, Eddie. It would have been such fun. If ever again you're out this way again please be sure to let me know.

I wrote you at the Ambassador when I received your letter and I imagine that's been forwarded to you. Before I got your telegram this morning, I called the hotel and they rang your room.

Somebody answered and said that you hadn't made the trip. It was about nine o'clock but the person sounded as if I'd awakened him so you'd better explain to him (whoever it was) that it was just one of your ruffian nephews calling.

My best to the family,

Always —

Bobby
