

Image

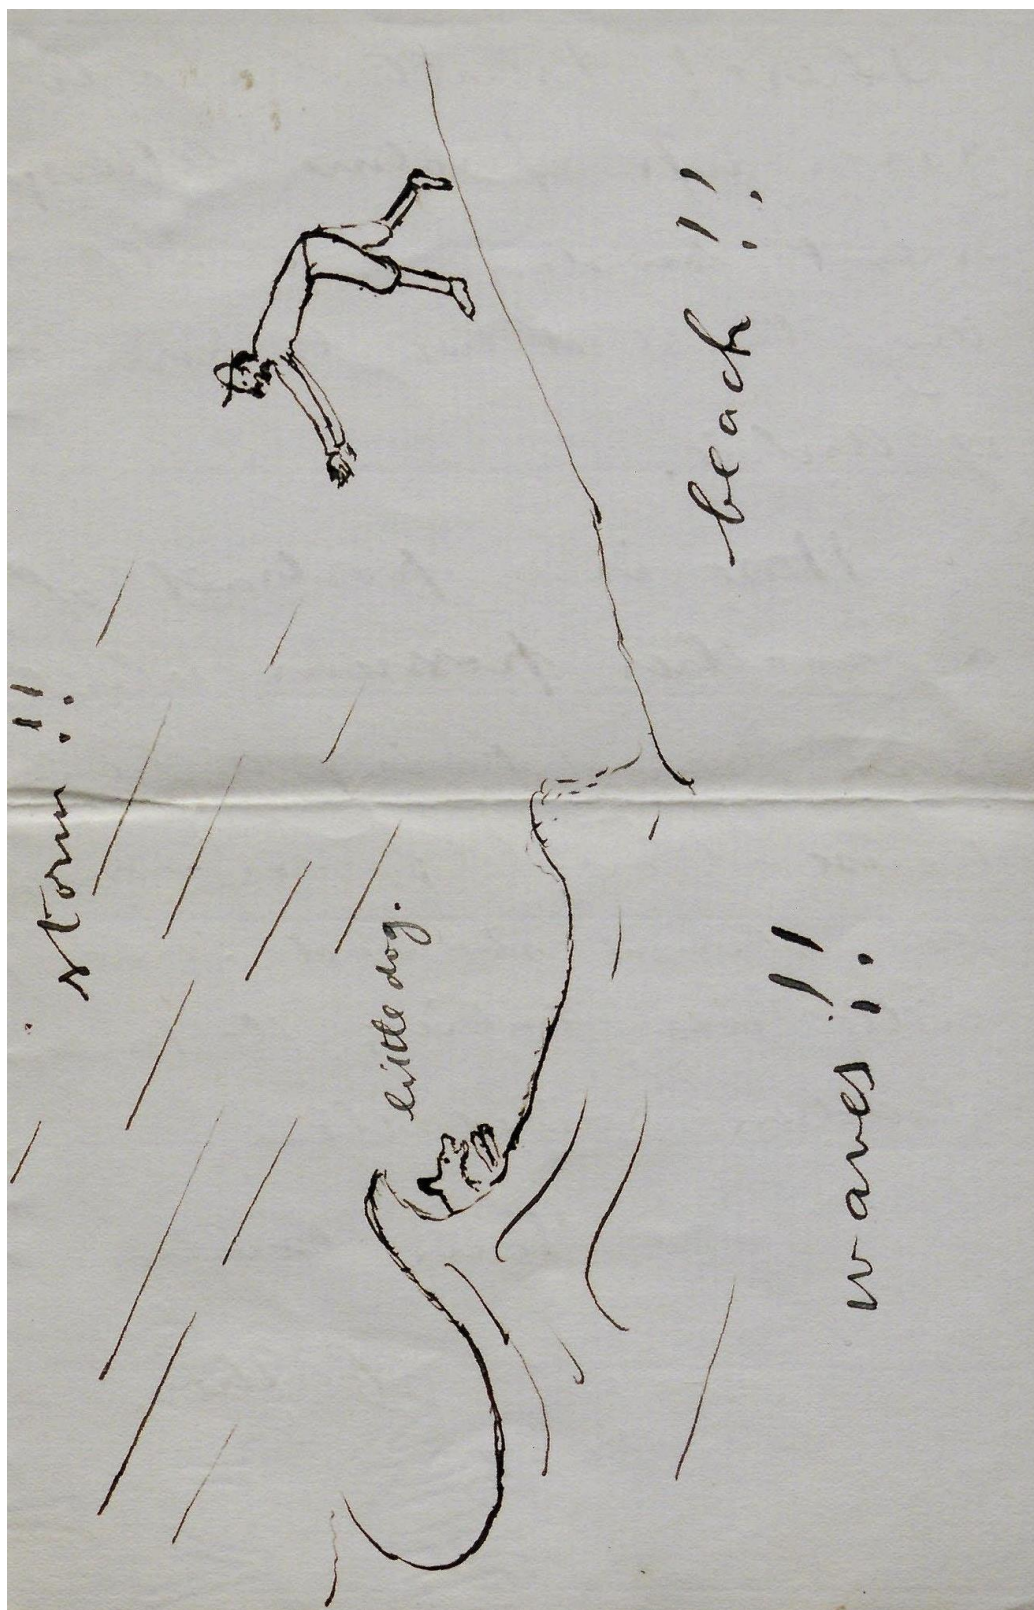

Theodore Roosevelt to Quentin Roosevelt, October 6, 1907.
(The Gilder Lehrman Institute of American History, GLC01410.04)

of Mr. John Parker.
He has children of his
own. They have a very old little dog
which they love more
than any other pet.
Her name is Fanny
and she has lost
almost all her teeth.
She was washed
ashore in a storm,
and the children
got her as she came to the beach.

Theodore Roosevelt to Quentin Roosevelt, October 6, 1907.
(The Gilder Lehrman Institute of American History, GLC01410.04)

Theodore Roosevelt to Quentin Roosevelt, October 6, 1907

Theodore Roosevelt to Quentin Roosevelt, October 6, 1907.
(The Gilder Lehrman Institute of American History, GLC01410.04)

Theodore Roosevelt to Quentin Roosevelt, October 6, 1907

There! I shall have to give up picture letters;
next Sunday I shall
try to send two to Kermit
or Archie.

Here is a portrait of a mother possum which was caught in a hen-
house at night; next morning
they found she had nine little wee babies; the Parker
children raised them.

Yours loving father.

Theodore Roosevelt to Quentin Roosevelt, October 6, 1907.
(The Gilder Lehrman Institute of American History, GLC01410.04)

Theodore Roosevelt to Quentin Roosevelt, October 6, 1907

Transcript

---

Tenesas Bayou

Oct 6th 1907

Blessed Quenty – Qull

Remember me warmly to Mademoiselle and to Miss Young. Here we are in camp, under the lead of Mr. John Parker. He has children of his own. They have a very old little dog which they love more than any other pet. Her name is Fanny and she has lost almost all her teeth. She was washed ashore in a storm, and the children got her as she came to the beach.

[contains sketch of the dog being washed ashore onto the beach during a storm]

There! I shall have to give up picture letters; next Sunday I shall try to send two to Kermit & Archie.

Here is a portrait of a mother possum which was caught in a hen-house at night; next morning they found she had nine little wee babies; the Parker children raised them.

Your loving father.