

Slave auction catalog from Louisiana, 1855

Introduction

On March 13 and 14, 1855, the firm of J. A. Beard & May placed on the auction block 178 enslaved men, women, and children at the Banks Arcade in New Orleans, Louisiana. They were part of the estate of William M. Lambeth, who had died in 1853. To settle the estate, Judge J. N. Lea had ordered the sale of 127 slaves from the Waverly plantation and 51 from the Meredith plantation, both in Avoyelles Parish.

The catalog from this auction includes business aspects of the slave trade but also personalizes the slaves by providing details about specific individuals and family relationships. The document stipulates that “the slaves will be sold singly, and when in families, together.” One such family includes:

18. Anthony Moore, about 30 years, fine engineer and field hand.
19. Sarah Moore, 32 years, good field hand; tonsils occasionally inflamed.
20. Infant, 2 months.
21. Anthony, 3 years.
22. Stephen, 5 years.
23. Nace, 9 years.
24. Sophy, 12 years, likely.

Questions for Discussion

Read the introduction and the excerpt and study the document. Then apply your knowledge of American history to answer the following questions:

1. Describe the situation that brought about the sale of slaves at the advertised auction?
2. What were potential buyers able to determine about the men, women, and children being sold from the details in the announcement?
3. Describe the financial process and special conditions involved in the sale and purchase of slaves at this auction.
4. How did the description of certain slaves in the auction announcement counter the argument of many slave holders that African Americans were lazy and uneducable?
5. Extra Assignment: Using the information available in the auction announcement, write a one-page essay explaining why slave auctions were known as a “Marketplace in Human Flesh.”
