Introduction

On June 6, 1944, as Allied forces numbering approximately 160,000 troops landed along fifty miles of coastline in Normandy, France, Moe Weiner, a native of Brooklyn, was serving in the US Army Quartermaster Corps in England. He did not participate in the D-Day invasion himself, but he could not help but be caught up in the excitement of the day. That evening he wrote to his wife, Sylvia, a social worker in New York City. Since letters were censored to conceal military activities, he could not say very much.

It’s a little hard to sit down and calmly write a letter, just as though nothing were happening. Of course nothing has happened except the most world shaking event.

Although I’m bursting to talk about it, I can’t. Not that I know anything; even opinions are taboo at this particular stage.

However I can say I am glad that the long wearisome wait is over.

How, when and wear [sic] did you first hear about it? Did you upon getting up in the morning turn on the radio, as we used to do? Or did you know earlier.

On the same day, Sylvia wrote to Moe expressing the excitement and fear she felt upon hearing the news of the D-Day invasion. She described her desperate search for newspaper accounts of the military assault, noted the silence on the train among fellow commuters as they absorbed the news, and reflected on the fearful responses of friends and co-workers. Sylvia reassured Moe that she shed no tears and that she believed “the sooner this gets started the sooner it will be over.”

Well – D-Day! It has come – God! So long awaited – so feared – so rejoiced – such release – such new tenseness – such excitement – such quiet – Well – darling – all of these feelings & emotions were expressed & felt by American people today – as you can well understand. People – & that includes me were torn between feelings of gladness that “the beginning of the end” has come – and with the fear of great sacrifices –

Questions for Discussion

Read the introduction, view the images of the letters, and study the transcripts. Then apply your knowledge of American history to answer the following questions:

1. What is the tone of the excerpt from Moe’s letter? What is the tone of the excerpt from Sylvia’s letter?

2. Why did Moe and Sylvia each write on June 6, 1944? What did they think was so important about that particular date? Cite evidence from the text to support your answer.
D-Day correspondence between a soldier and his wife, 1944

3. Why would people in New York be “torn between feelings of gladness and fear of great sacrifices” upon hearing about D-Day?

4. Look at the full text of Sylvia’s letter. What do you find interesting regarding her description of the commute on the train?

5. Look at the full text of Moe’s letter. How would you characterize the difference in tone from Sylvia’s letter?
Tuesday June 6, 1944

Dearest Syl:

It’s a little hard to sit down and calmly write a letter, just as though nothing were happening. Of course nothing has happened except the most world shaking event. Although I’m bursting to talk about it, I can’t. Not that I know anything; even opinions are taboo at this particular stage.

However I can say I am glad that the long wearisome wait is over. How, when and wear [sic] did you first hear about it? Did you upon getting up in the morning turn on the radio, as we used to do? Or did you know earlier.

I see by the papers that Rome has been taken. Well, that too is ok. In fact everything taken into consideration things march well.

We’ve finally managed to hook up Jack’s radio and as I write, I’m listening to the programs with half an ear. It’s pleasant as a background. Right now a chorus is singing “Night & Day.” Remember it? It always has been a favorite of mine.

Just in passing, I received no mail today. But since the last week has been good in that respect, one day without any is no great calamity. So I’ll begin to answer your 5/21 letter, the second one you wrote that day.

It’s nice for you now, looking forward to weekends, and the chance to spend two quiet relaxing days at home. I used to envy you then when I had to get up at the usual time and crawl into a hot subway, spend a few hours at the office and dive into the by now hotter subway for the ride back. But what a relief to get that first whiff of cool air as I would get out at Sheepshead Bay.

I’d have given something to have been at Sarah Schiff’s that evening with that tipsy lady needling Esther (Ellen) and her boy friend. How they must have squirmed. I wonder what her boy friend thinks of Esther’s friends’ friends?

Last night when I finished writing to you I said I was going to play some ping pong. Well I never did get to it. Just then some fellow from another outfit near us walked into our day room and told us that there was a movie in their mess hall, so we decided to take a look. It turned out to be Wallace Beery in “Rationing” It was mildly amusing, that’s all.

Saw you had a little bit of the blues that Sunday evening. And attempting to drown your sorrows at Elmans with a fudge sundae, didn’t help either, or singing songs. When you’re blue, you’re blue, so whatta ya gonna do?

I can’t seem to organize for writing tonight dear, but,

I love you

Moe
Tuesday June 6, 1944

Dear Syl,

It's a little hard to set down and calmly write a letter, just as though nothing were happening. Of course nothing has happened except the most wonderful event. Although I'm bursting to talk about it, I want that I know anything, even opinions are taboo at this particular stage.

Nevertheless I can say I am glad that the long wait is over.

Now, when and where did you first hear about it? Did you upon getting up in the morning turn on the radio, as we used to do? Or did you when you knew earlier.

See the papers, that Rome has been taken. Well, that has to be. In fact, every thing taken into consideration, things march well.

D-Day correspondence between a soldier and his wife, 1944

I'd have quilts something. I have been at Sarah Schiff's that evening. We tied up the yard, needle and saw, bag free. Now they must have returned. I wonder what his dayfriend thinks of Esther's friends' friends? Last night when I finished writing to you I said I was writing to you. It's been that way, song, song, song. And I never did get it. But then some fellow from another outfit mixed us swelled into our dark room and told us that there was a movie in their movie hall, so we decided to take a look. It turned out to be the movie in 'Rearranged' to be mildly amusing, that's all.

So you had a little bit of the blues that Sunday evening, and attempting to draw your attention at Elmwood with a jingle pande, didn't help either, so singing songs. Then you're blue. You're blue, do whatta ya gonna do? Can't seem to organize for writing tonight. I love you.
Hello – My dearest, —

Well – D-Day! It has come – God! So long awaited – so feared – so rejoiced – such release – such new tenseness – such excitement – such quiet – Well – darling – all of these feelings & emotions were expressed & felt by American people today – as you can well understand. People – & that includes me were torn between feelings of gladness that “the beginning of the end” has come – and with the fear of great sacrifices –

So much for the general feeling – dearest – except – that I want to tell you that the whole thing is being handled in the usual exciting American manner – until blow by blow description – comments – by radio – long discussions on meagre information in the newspapers – a day of prayer by mayor, workers – & President –

Now for the exciting event as it was reflected in my own day – [2] Awoke at the usual[strikethrough] time – & my usual quiet fashion because David is still sleeping (can’t turn on the radio) – dressed & left the house – In the bus – I notice a[strikethrough] movement – a restlessness – a murmuring amongst the people – but scarcely paid any attention to it – as I was occupied with my own thoughts. Arrived at Sheepshead Bay & couldn’t get a paper at the usual place because of the crowd around the paper vendors – So I dashed over to another stand – & grabbed the first Herald Tribune available – the headlines of which were not sensational (it was not the “Extra” – But as I was about to dash away – noted PM – It was sensational – The front page just had the following words splashed across the page – “ Invasion Extra” – I brought a copy – As I got into the train – & thank Heaven! got a seat – looked at the rear page [strikeout] covering latest Bulletins – & there was Gen. Eisenhower’s speech – [commanding] the real invasion – I became Excited & read the paper through – It was so exciting – People were [3] deep in their papers – like never before – Few spoke – even people traveling together did not speak – I read every word. When I arrived at the office – several girls were crying – others glad it had finally come – Tenseness which had been accumulating during the last few weeks was released – Needless to say – no one could work – As for myself – I didn’t cry – darling – I felt as I have been feeling all along that it is good it has started – What will happen will do so – & the sooner this gets started the sooner it will be over – I am fully aware of all the dangers & sacrifices – I am ready for them – I have been thinking of them for so long – So I spent my time trying to reassure others – I called Olga early – & learned she was feeling quite low – but she cheered up – Decided to have lunch with her –

We finally forced ourselves to work – & became immersed in it, so that it was 11 45 before I knew it – we were permitted 15 minutes for personal prayer – But – as you know how I feel about that – I departed for Palmer & Marcers –

[4] Found Olga in fairly good spirits – Had lunch with her & learned she planned to go to Chicago on Saturday – Gave her the pictures & she liked them so much – spoke of you & Marty & exchanged thoughts & memories – Finally left her & walked back – trying to get a few words from radios blaring out all over the streets – Finally – bought the latest paper – Came back to the office – & read the papers then – as there was no [radios] handy – There was much talk about the immensity of the undertaking (Remember when we spoke about an umbrella of airplanes in that long ago – seated in a blue chair –) about whether this is a feint – or a real thing – about the whereabouts of the Luftwaffe – about what Russia would do – about when [illegible] would strike & about Rome – about this beginning of the end of the war – how long it would take – Perhaps – 1945 – the beginning – Perhaps – I didn’t have time then to picture you – your [position] – your place in this – & I am glad – Late in the afternoon we were informed that the “Little Flower” requested [5] presence at a “Prayer meeting–” in Madison PK – where a light burns ever for the soldiers who died in the last war – So at 5 P. M – went there – around the corner from the office – There were crowds & crowds – The mayor came with Mr. Whaler – & loads of camera men – etc. – A catholic priest, & Rabbi (Wise) & Protestant pastor – said prayers – then – an English opera singer sang “God Save The King” – a French (Free) who received a lot of applause sang the “Marseilles” which is very stirring – Papers drifted down from the tall buildings – Then the Italian anthem was played – as Italy was welcomed as a member of the Allied Nations – Then Igor Gorin (a White Russian) sang of all things – the “Internationale” – what a faux Pas – Evidently, there had been no time for Igor to learn the new Russian anthem – & it was funny to hear a white Russian signing “And ye Prisoners of starvation” to the crowd –
D-Day correspondence between a soldier and his wife, 1944

Wow! It was terrific – & funny – because most of us knew about the new Russian Anthem – By the way, attitude toward Russia has changed considerably here – It is realized that she has taken her place as a nation alongside with us – & that she no longer is a bugaboo – Most people think Russia is going capitalistic – while other nations will tend toward socialism – Who knows? So it ended – & home I came – There were no appointments scheduled at the Draft Board – thank Heaven! So I sat myself down at the Radio – & have not left it since – Every once in a while programs break-in constantly with news bulletins – It is exciting – & in between tunes – I think of you – & your place – The President read a so-called prayer – what was a great document & sounded like a new “Gettysburg” address – How long this interest & excitement [inserted: will] keep the American People united remains to be seen –

Now to you – I hope you are alright – & I have shed only a few tears in my fears – But no matter what – dearest – I love you, love you – love you & Falmouth St will be ready for your homecoming –

Soon – I hope –

To Victory soon –

Dearest –

syl

Good Luck! Good Good Luck!

to all of you boys!

[7] P.S Called Mom – & as usual she was wonderful – Quiet – but interested in all the going’s on –had just listened in to the Presidents’ prayer – & she prayed – too –

My Dad called to ask how I was feeling – explained –

So dearest – this time I really – forgot to say “Good night” –

So darling; Beloved –

“Good night” I hope a good night for people all over the world –

Love Syl
June 6, 1944

Hello my dearest,

Well, D-Day. It has come.

God? So long awaited - so feared - so tragic - such release - such tension - such statement - such grief.

Well, darling, all of these feelings & emotions were expressed & felt by American people today - as you can well understand. People - that includes me - such tension between feeling it/feeling that the tragedy of the war has come - and the few of great sacrifice.

Popular for the general feeling - decent except that I want to tell you that the whole thing is being handled in the usual military manner - with slow by slow disruption - conquest - day raids - long discussions on very little information in the newspapers - a day by day by Mayor scholars -

Now for the feeling event as it was reflected in my mind -
Awake of the peculiar time – my normal quiet spacious because D-Day no music playing (can’t turn on the radio) – dressed left the house –

The men – I notice am scattering amongst the people – but scarcely gain any attention to it – so I was occupied with my own thoughts named at

The police boys couldn’t get a paper of the nearest place because of the crowd around the paper vendors –

So I decided one to go the place –

Grabbed the first folded paper

Available – the headline I think were not questioned it was not the “Off” – But so I was about to рукав-аляк-пш – It was awful – The first page just had the following word splashed across the page – “Germany, Italy” I bought a copy – and got into the train – there I saw – one – The German, “Read the paper always” – Die

may – People were

Sylvia Greenfield Weiner to Morris “Moe” Weiner, June 6, 1944, p. 3. (The Gilder Lehrman Institute of American History, GLC09414.0286)
D-Day correspondence between a soldier and his wife, 1944

D-Day correspondence between a soldier and his wife, 1944