

Notes on the Great Awakening

- God, the creator, was open to all who made an appeal to Him.
- A person could make an emotional appeal and gain salvation through the Divine Grace of God.
- Many groups believed an organized Church was not needed.
- Education was needed for life skills; a trained ministry was not required by all new Churches.
- Some churches began a more democratic Church organization that had carryovers into politics.
- The conversion of all individuals to Christianity would improve society.
