A prince, whose character is thus marked by every act which may define a tyrant, is unfit to be the ruler of a free people. Nor have we been wanting in attention to our British brethrenWe have appealed to their native justice and magnanimity, and we have conjured them by the ties of our common kindred to disavow these usurpations We, therefore, the representatives of the United States of America, in General Congress, assembled, appealing to the Supreme Judge of the world for the rectitude of our intentions, do, in the name, and by the authority of the good people of these colonies, solemnly publish and declare, that these united colonies are, and of right ought to be free and independent states; that they are absolved from all allegiance to the British Crown, and that all political connection between them and the state of Great Britain, is and ought to be totally dissolved; and that as free and independent states, they have full power to levey war, conclude peace, contract alliances, establish commerce, and to do all other acts and things which independent states may of right do. And for the support of this declaration, with a firm reliance on the protection of Divine Providence, we mutually pledge to	solved; and that as free and independent states, they have full ey war, conclude peace, contract alliances, establish and to do all other acts and things which independent states do. And for the support of this declaration, with a firm he protection of Divine Providence, we mutually pledge to each other our lives, our fortunes and our sacred honor.
