

THE GILDER LEHRMAN INSTITUTE of AMERICAN HISTORY

ANNUAL REPORT 2010

Our Mission

The Gilder Lehrman Institute of American History is a nonprofit organization supporting the study and love of American history through a wide range of programs and resources for students, teachers, scholars, and history enthusiasts throughout the nation. The Institute creates and works closely with history-focused schools; organizes summer seminars and development programs for teachers; produces print and digital publications and traveling exhibitions; hosts lectures by eminent historians; administers a History Teacher of the Year Award in every state and U.S. territory; and offers national book prizes and fellowships for scholars to work in the Gilder Lehrman Collection as well as other renowned archives. The Gilder Lehrman Institute's website, www.gilderlehrman.org, serves as a gateway to American history online with rich resources for educators, designed specifically for K-12 teachers and students.

Dear Friends and Colleagues,

We are pleased to share with you some of the Gilder Lehrman Institute of American History's high points in 2010:

- Donation of the unique Gilder Lehrman Collection to the Gilder Lehrman Institute was completed in December, making the Institute owner and steward of the Collection's 61,000 documents in perpetuity.
- GLI Affiliate Schools grew from sixty-seven to 635 in forty-three states, with a goal of 2,500 by 2014.
- Thirty-eight new Teaching American History grants from the US Department of Education, bringing the ongoing total of active grants to eighty-five grants in thirty-seven states, American Samoa and the Virgin Islands.
- Five new Summer Seminars were added—"John and Abigail Adams," "New Perspectives on American Wars: 1750-1865," "The Gilded Age: 1865-1896," "Women's Rights in America," and "Economic and Financial Crises in American History"—among our offering of thirty-nine seminars serving 1100 teachers.
- The "Civil War" history box was published, coinciding with the Civil War Sesquicentennial and bringing our award-winning "History in a Box" series to a total of seven.
- Forty-five new historians' lectures were offered as podcasts on the GLI website, including ten on the history of the Supreme Court, bringing the total number of GLI podcasts to more than 110.
- More than $6 million in private donations raised from 356 private-sector supporters.

Sincerely,

JAMES G. BASKER
President

Teacher Seminars

Gary Gallagher speaks to participants at “The American Civil War: Origins and Consequences” seminar.

Since 1994, the Gilder Lehrman Institute has provided weeklong professional development opportunities for teachers. Led by eminent scholars and master teachers, these programs offer in-depth exploration of topics in American history. Participants include elementary, middle, and high school teachers, community college and small college professors, and educators from museums and National Park Service sites. In 2010, the Institute held thirty-nine seminars for more than 1,000 educators.

History School Programs

Students from New Dorp High School in NY speak with journalist Sam Donaldson on the battlefield at Gettysburg.

The Gilder Lehrman Affiliate Schools Program promotes teacher development and innovation in history teaching. The Institute provides Affiliate Schools with a unique online gateway to education resources, events, and tools designed to bring American history to life in the classroom. The first Gilder Lehrman History School, the Academy of American Studies in Queens, NY, was founded in 1994. We currently have 635 Affiliate School members in forty-three states—stage one of a major initiative to expand the affiliate school program in the 2009-2010 school year, thanks to a generous grant from the NEH.

Teaching American History Grants

Since 2001, the US Department of Education has awarded more than $800 million through the Teaching American History Grant program to improve American history instruction in the nation's schools. The Gilder Lehrman Institute has partnered with school districts in 140 grants since the inception of the program. During the 2009-2010 academic year, more than 1,700 teachers across the country participated in the Institute's TAH grants, attending staff development workshops, receiving Gilder Lehrman resources, and enrolling in summer teacher seminars.

In 2010, the Gilder Lehrman Institute partnered in thirty-eight new grants bringing our ongoing total of active grants to eighty-five in thirty-seven states, American Samoa, and the Virgin Islands.

National History Teacher of the Year Award

Nathan McAlister, 2010 National History Teacher of the Year, with United States Supreme Court Justice Sandra Day O'Connor and Mr. McAlister's former students Kassidy Dahl (far left) and Logan Bausch (far right).

The Gilder Lehrman Institute and program sponsors HISTORY™ and Preserve America presented the seventh annual National History Teacher of the Year award to Nathan McAlister of Royal Valley Middle School in Mayetta, Kansas. On October 13, 2010, Mr. McAlister accepted his award at School Without Walls in Washington, DC. United States Supreme Court Justice (Ret.) Sandra Day O'Connor spoke at the ceremony.

The national winner is selected from among the state winners. The jurors were Tim Bailey (2009 National History Teacher of the Year), Clement Alexander Price (Board of Governors Distinguished Service Professor of History, Rutgers University) and Elaine Reed (Executive Director Emerita, National Council for History Education). Each state winner received $1,000 and a large archive of American history classroom resources presented to his or her school library. The national winner received an additional $10,000 and a trip to Washington, DC, for the national ceremony.

Gilder Lehrman History Scholars Program

2010 Gilder Lehrman History Scholars examine documents from the Gilder Lehrman Collection.

For eight years, the Gilder Lehrman Institute has sponsored a competitive summer scholarship program in American history for outstanding college sophomores and juniors. The program, conducted in New York City, provides an opportunity for the next generation of historians to experience primary-source research and to work closely with eminent scholars. In addition to the five-week History Scholars Program, there is a one-week version for thirty finalists. Since 2003, nearly 400 college students have been awarded places in the program from among more than 1500 applicants.

In the summer of 2010, ten top undergraduate history majors selected from more than 200 applicants (representing 151 schools in thirty-three states, Canada, Great Britain, Israel, the Philippines, and Germany) came to New York City for the five-week program. Scholars conducted research projects focused on various aspects of the secession crisis of 1860-1861, using unique documents held in the Gilder Lehrman Collection.

Website

The Institute's website, www.gilderlehrman.org, provides information for teachers on major topics in American history, access to thousands of documents in the Gilder Lehrman Collection, online exhibitions, podcasts, and many other interactive features. In 2010, more than 15,000 new users registered on the Gilder Lehrman website, giving them access to exclusive content on the site.

This year the Institute began a comprehensive redesign of the website to better convey its mission and engage diverse audiences with its programs, exhibitions, activities, collections, and vast array of resources specifically designed for K-12 teachers and students. The new website will build on the success of the Institute's online resources such as the History Now journal and online lectures, and create opportunities to more fully support its Affiliate School community.

In 2010, new features on the website included:

- The creation of an Affiliate School section providing member schools with richer, more interesting material than offered in standard textbooks, adding new content monthly.
- Forty-eight new podcasts of lectures by eminent historians on major topics in American history, which were downloaded more than 35,000 times.
- Two new online exhibitions:
 - John Brown: The Abolitionist and His Legacy, an audio-enhanced exhibition created using documents and artifacts from the Gilder Lehrman Collection that were on display at the New-York Historical Society in 2009-2010.
 - Abraham Lincoln: A Man of His Time, A Man for All Times, an audio-enhanced exhibition based on the NEH-sponsored traveling exhibition of the same name.

History Now

In September 2010, History Now, the Gilder Lehrman Institute's quarterly online journal, entered its seventh year of publication. Each issue addresses a major theme in American history with articles by historians, lesson plans, links to related websites, bibliographies, and many other resources.

- Editor: Carol Berkin (Baruch College, City University of New York, and The Graduate Center, City University of New York); Associate Editor: Lesley S. Herrmann (Gilder Lehrman Institute); Managing Editor: Karina Gaige (Gilder Lehrman Institute); Archivist: Mary Jo Kline (University of Virginia).

Publications and Resources

In 2010, the Gilder Lehrman Institute published The Civil War: People, Places, Politics, the latest in its “History in a Box” series, along with new document booklets and calendars. Below is a list of publications by category:

History in a Box: People, Places, Politics

THE CIVIL WAR

The materials in this box offer an educational account of the Civil War. The box includes a resource book and CD containing primary source documents, artwork, study questions, and a list of additional resources; posters of documents and illustrations; portrait placards of key individuals; a poster-sized timeline; a DVD of lectures by leading scholars.

Document Booklets

- James Madison and the Birth of the U.S. Constitution, with an introduction by Andrew Robertson, Professor at Lehman College, City University of New York. This booklet examines the evolution of the U.S. Constitution from the Articles of Confederation to the Bill of Rights to the Constitution’s global legacy. Special attention is paid to James Madison, the “Father of the Constitution,” as well as the 19th- and 20th-century amendments that expanded the definition of citizenship and opened suffrage to more Americans.
- Between Battles: Civil War Soldiers’ Letters, 1861-1865, with introductions by the 2005 Gilder Lehrman History Scholars. This book examines the lives of fifteen Civil War soldiers through their own letters, now part of the Gilder Lehrman Collection.
- Frederick Douglass: A Documentary History of His Fight for Freedom and Equality, with introductions by the 2006 Gilder Lehrman History Scholars. This book is an exploration of Frederick Douglass’s great influence on the abolitionist and African American rights movement throughout much of the 19th century as demonstrated by his own letters, speeches, and other writings, as well as his control of his own image.

Calendars

- 2011 Calendar of the Civil War
- 2011 Calendar of the Abolition of Slavery

The Gilder Lehrman Collection

Due to construction at the New-York Historical Society, physical access to the Collection is temporarily limited. However, 2010 was a productive year for research and outreach. Over 200 researchers requested documents and information. Research topics included: New Jersey Loyalists during the American Revolution, The Manhattan Project, World War II, Masculinity and Religion in the Civil War, Revolutionary War documents relating to African-Americans and various National History Day projects.

2010 Highlights

- Documents loaned for Lincoln, Life Size, an exhibition at the Bruce Museum in Connecticut. (February 2009–June 2010)
- Documents loaned for From Slavery to Freedom, at the National Underground Railroad Freedom Center in Ohio. (August 2010–September 2011)
- Completion of the inventory of the Henry Knox Collection (GLC02437).
The collection contains 10,710 items, of which 7,277 have been digitized and 1,478 have been transcribed.
- In February, the Collection began featuring transcripts of documents on www.scribd.com and has averaged over 1,000 hits per month.
- Users of the Collection's online search engine conducted more than 125,000 searches.

Gilder Lehrman Center

The Gilder Lehrman Institute sponsors the Gilder Lehrman Center for the Study of Slavery, Resistance, and Abolition at Yale University, dedicated to the investigation and dissemination of information concerning all aspects of slavery, especially the chattel slave system and its destruction.

Frederick Douglass Book Prize

Sponsored by the Gilder Lehrman Institute, through the Gilder Lehrman Center for the Study of Slavery, Resistance, and Abolition at Yale University, this annual prize of $25,000 recognizes the best book on slavery or abolition.

Ongoing Projects and Partnerships

TEACHER TRAINING

- “Life, Liberty, and the Pursuit of Happiness”: Second of a three-year Teaching American History Grant Program in partnership with the Area Cooperative Educational Services (ACES) of North Haven, Connecticut.
- “Middle Passages: A Shared History of the Trans-Atlantic Slave Trade”: Second of a three-year summer institute in partnership with the Gilder Lehrman Institute for secondary educators in the United States and Ghana. The 2010 seminar was held at Yale University.

INTERDISCIPLINARY SCHOLARS WORKING GROUP

Supported by the generous allocation of Kempf Funds from the Whitney and Betty MacMillan Center for the Study of International and Area Studies at Yale, the GLC continues to offer a biannual Working Group, an interdisciplinary forum that brings together selected scholars to investigate a particular theme. The 2010 working group explored “Slavery and Public History” and included the following participants: Michael Allen (Charles Pinckney National Historic Site), Richard Benjamin (The International Slavery Museum), Lonnie Bunch (Smithsonian National Museum of African American History and Culture), Christy Coleman (The American Civil War Center at Historic Tredegar), Rex Ellis (Smithsonian National Museum of African American History and Culture), Sheila Flanagan (The Museum of Mobile), Bertrand Guillet (Chateau des ducs de Bretagne), Katherine Kane (Harriet Beecher Stowe Center), Lynda Kaplan (American History Workshop), John McAleer (National Maritime Museum), Wayne Modest (Horniman Museum and Gardens), Richard Rabinowitz (American History Workshop), Fath Davis Ruffins (Smithsonian National Museum of American History), Jill Sanderson (President Lincoln's Cottage and the U.S. Capitol Visitor Center), Valika Smeulders (Erasmus University at Rotterdam), Bob Sutton (The National Park Service), and Dianne Swann-Wright (Smithsonian National Museum of African American History and Culture).

YALE SLAVERY AND ABOLITION PORTAL

In collaboration with the Yale Instructional Technology Group, the Gilder Lehrman Center launched the Yale Slavery and Abolition Portal, a website designed to help researchers and students find primary source material related to slavery and its legacies within the university's many libraries and galleries (www.slavery.yale.edu/).

PUBLICATIONS

In collaboration with Yale University Press, the Gilder Lehrman Center published the Atlas of the Transatlantic Slave Trade, edited by David Eltis & David Richardson with a foreword by David Brion Davis and afterword by David W. Blight. This 288-page clothbound edition contains 189 color maps, 5 black-and-white and 36 color illustrations, and 61 color graphs. The publication is the first comprehensive, up-to-date atlas on the 350-year history of kidnapping and coercion.

WORLD BIBLIOGRAPHY OF SLAVERY AND ABOLITION

The GLC continues to manage the World Bibliography of Slavery and Abolition, formerly edited by Professor Joseph Miller at the University of Virginia.

Finance and Development

Professor Vincent Cannato leads a Junior Historians' Forum on Immigration for 250 New York City students at the Museum of Jewish Heritage.

Financial Overview 2010

The Gilder Lehrman Institute has operated in the black every year since 1994. Total revenues for fiscal year 2010 were received as follows: 54% for unrestricted use, 23% restricted for programs, and 23% from educational services. Total expenses for the fiscal year were allocated to the following: 84% to programs, 11% to administration, and 5% to fundraising.

FUNDRAISING HIGHLIGHTS

- A group of donors pledged $425,000 over two years to deliver GLI document-based history education programs to more than 300 teachers and 600 students in underserved Catholic schools in the Archdiocese of New York and the Diocese of Brooklyn. Grants for this program were made by the Altman Foundation, the McInerney Family Foundation, Anthony and Christine de Nicola, William and Lesley Collins, Mary and Alex Ross, and an anonymous donor.
- Larry Field pledged $100,000 to continue his support of GLI's history education programs for Los Angeles students and teachers. The initiative includes: a Saturday Academy of American History at Gertz-Ressler High School for 150 students, sponsorship of 15 Los Angeles teachers to attend GLI 2010 summer seminars, two Junior Historians' Forums for more than 300 students, and the distribution of two volumes of GLI's History in a Box series – The American West and The Civil War – to 75 local schools.
- Beth and Ravenel Curry pledged $80,000 over the next four years to continue their sponsorship of the fall sessions of the Saturday Academy of American History at Notre Dame High School in Manhattan. In 2009, the academy benefited 246 students from more than 30 local schools.
- The Fred C. and Mary R. Koch Foundation partners with GLI to train sixty Wichita teachers and two hundred students in American history by providing $76,000 in funding. A Wichita Community Forum with an eminent historian is offered as are two professional-training workshops for local teachers, and a Saturday Academy of American History.

- GLI Trustee John Nau and his wife Bobbi Nau pledged $65,000, extending their annual sponsorship of ten teachers from Texas to attend GLI summer seminars through 2012.
- Sidney and Ruth Lapidus renewed their $20,000 commitment to fund a visiting history professorship at New York City public schools, which has previously featured lectures by Columbia University's Christopher Brown. During the 2010-2011 school year, Professor Manisha Sinha of the University of Massachusetts, Amherst will lead three Junior Historians' Forums for approximately 600 students. Dr. Sinha will draw on research from her current book on black abolitionists in the nineteenth century.
- One hundred and fifty-seven teachers attended GLI's 2010 weeklong summer seminars through the support of 62 different private donors throughout the country.
